Anthony Goonan (anthony@yless4u.com) is the founder and CEO of YLESS4U, a Broadband Telecommunications Carrier and ISP specialising in regional/rural and remote wireless broadband communications services.

Anthony graduated from Monash University (B. Econ) in 1976.

Subsequently he has specialised in business systems analysis with CRA in Australia and PNG; TAA (now Qantas) in airline reservations systems design; NSW TAFE (Teacher Information Processing) and in 1988 joined Telecom (Telstra) as a Data Systems Specialist.

In Telstra, Anthony held a number of senior positions - General Management Sales, Marketing and Product Development, primarily focussed on the Federal and State Government sectors.

In mid 2003, Anthony "retired" from the Telecommunications industry and focussed on family pursuits, assisting both of his sons' Olympic aspirations. He is now President of the Australian Wrestling Union and has been instrumental in the reform of this Olympic Sport within Australia.

In 2004, Anthony founded YLESS4U specialising in rural broadband wireless telecommunications. YLESS4U is now registered for both Wholesale and Retail HiBIS (Higher Bandwidth Incentive Scheme), and YLESS4U is now aggressively rolling out Wireless Broadband Services in the regional and rural areas surrounding the Australian Capital Territory.
