

Michael Cosgrave is a lawyer who has worked both as a barrister and as a solicitor across a range of areas in both the private and public sectors. He joined the Commission in July 1996 as Regional Director for the Melbourne office and was appointed General Manager Telecommunications for the Australian Competition and Consumer Commission in April 1997.

His current position involves the overall management of the ACCC's Telecommunications Group and the administration of the telecommunications specific competition and access provisions in the Trade Practices Act. He is responsible for developing and maintaining key external relationships with government agencies, ministers offices and industry. He manages policy development undertaken by the Telecommunications Group and coordinates, on behalf of the group, inputs to Commission strategy

16 June 2004